Dear John

Thank you for your correspondence which was sent to me by fax yesterday. This letter is to confirm a phone conversation I have had with Stephen Johnson today.

I have advised him that National Sea Products Limited has agreed to engage the services of Hill and Knowlton as its international public relations counsel to advise and act on behalf of National Sea Products Limited in matters that affect the company with regards to the sealing controversy. Specifically, we have agreed to the following:

1. A National Sea task force has been established consisting of myself, L. Robbie Shaw, Vice President, National Sea Products Limited, Murray Coolican, P.A.I., and Peter O'Malley, O'Malley Communications. We have agreed that you and Stephen Johnson will join the task force as representatives of Hill and Knowlton.

2. The full task force is scheduled to meet in Toronto on April 22. The objective for the day is to concentrate on developing communications strategies. You should expect to receive a copy of the day's agenda later this week.

Our plan is to meet as a group throughout the day, beginning early in the morning. We anticipate that Gordon E. M. Cummings, President and Chief Executive Officer of National Sea Products, as well as John McNeil, Senior Vice President, Marketing, National Sea Products, North America, and possible other National Sea executives will join our deliberations at four o'clock in the afternoon.

3. It is understood that National Sea Products will compensate Hill and Knowlton for any costs related to your participation in the Toronto task force meeting as well as the cost of your services related to preliminary activities which you may undertake as of this date in regards to this matter.

4. It is further understood that a formal contract engaging Hill and Knowlton will be negotiated between National Sea Products Limited and Hill and Knowlton subsequent to the April 22 meeting.

John, I am most particularly pleased that Hill and Knowlton will be joining the task force that we have assembled for this project as I am confident that your organization can bring to National Sea superior experience, skills, and counsel as well as the international organization that this project needs..

Thank you again for devoting so much senior management time to me during my visit to New York last week. I look forward to seeing you and Stephen on April 22.

Yours very truly

Laura Bennet
