Dear Mr. Ambassador:

It was good to hear some cheerful news from you on a Friday afternoon and, as always, it was a pleasure talking to you.

From our first meeting with Minister Caceres, I believe that we have established an excellent rapport. Our firm looks forward to the opportunity of working with you and the Embassy staff in ways that can be of service to the government of Uruguay.

As we discussed, our first project would involve identifying suitable aircraft now available in the military and private sector inventories to correspond to the requirements list you furnished to us. We would then explore the various ways in which Uruguay could secure these aircraft through financing, military aid or other available alternatives. For your information, we are enclosing the results of our early research into aircraft availability.

If agreeable to you, we will begin to call upon officials in our government and other sources to develop this project further.

We expect that it will take about a month to examine these possibilities and to evaluate with you the type and model of aircraft, transfer alternatives and other means to achieve the results you seek.

To begin our relationship on this first phase of the aircraft project, my firm has agreed to a modest retainer of $4,000 plus some reasonable expenses. We will, of course, be
