Item 11. - Amended Response: RGIT's foreign principals are the Federation of German Industries (BDI) and the Association of German Chambers of Industry and Commerce (DIHK). During the period covered by the supplemental statement, RGIT arranged for a series of meetings in Washington for BDI's outgoing director, Ludolf von Wartenberg. The meetings took place in Washington from September 5, 2006 through September 8, 2006, and included appointments with Senator Charles Grassley, United States Trade Representative Susan Schwab, Assistant Secretary of State Daniel Sullivan, Congressman Phil English, Congressman Kenny Hulshof, Congressman Jim McCrery, and Undersecretary of Commerce Franklin Lavin. The purpose of Mr. von Wartenberg's travel and individual appointments was to express his appreciation to those he met with for their cooperation with the BDI in recent years and to express his interest in a continued dialogue following his retirement from the BDI. Informational materials distributed by RGIT include RGIT's online, German-language publication "Washington News" and the online, English-language publication "Legislative and Regulatory Update", both of which have sizeable audiences in the German business and trade-policy communities in the U.S. and Germany.

Item 15(a). - Amended Response: Item 15(a) 1 is amended to reflect an answer in the affirmative. A review of RGIT's files indicates that funds expended in connection with the research for, and publication of, German Business Matters, a pamphlet scheduled for release in March 2007 and presenting information on German investment in the United States, amounted to $13,500. These funds were paid to Content First, LLC, a Washington, DC research firm tasked with compiling and publishing data on German investment in the United States.
